

See you in September

It's September; that bittersweet time of year when the water starts to cool down and the sun begins to set on the summer. We polled Labor Day weekend beachgoers about their favorite summer beach songs, offering some old favorites of the Sun staff for starters, like "See You in September" and "Sealed with a Kiss."

SUN PHOTOS AND TEXT CINDY LANE

Above: Former DJ Tracy Eckert picked "Save the Whales" by Country Joe McDonald, most famous for his "Feel Like I'm Fixin' to Die Rag" performance at Woodstock.

Above left: Mandy Lucanick, pictured, center, with her family said Miley Cyrus' "Party in the USA" is her favorite summer beach song.

Left: Sharlene Mazza likes "Kokomo," by the Beach Boys. With a "We love Jamaica" beach towel, who can blame her? Jamaica is one of the real islands mentioned in the song about a made up island.

Above: Julie Perkins picked the obligatory perennial "Margaritaville," by Jimmy Buffett, while Melissa Porter chose "Summertime" by Kenny Chesney ("perfect song on the radio, sing along cause it's one we know...").

Left: , Bill Parkerson chose the classic "California Girls," by the Beach Boys, while three-year-old Betsy Neal piped up with another classic – the pre-school hit, "Wheels on the Bus." Sandra Parkerson aptly selected "A Whiter Shade of Pale," by Procol Harum, for the Labor Day weekend, which typically ends with a few cases of sunburn. John Neal likes "Knock on Wood," by R&B great Eddie Floyd, while Rebecca Neal grooves to "Sweet Child O' Mine," by Guns N' Roses

